The Sirens of the Lobby.

Some of the Pitfalls of Congressional Life.

Among the exciting causes to immorality, says the Washington Capital, the most prominent is your Congressman. Your Congressman, unless he has his family with him, is in a perilous condition, and then he lives under a moral restraint. There is no moral restraint that we know of so potent as the wife. The wife fetches her husband in at an early hour of nights, unless she accompanies him to a lecture, a reception, night meeting, or some other mild entertainment of that sort; and she sets her chaste face against the female lobby. The female lobby weakens before and retreats ingloriously from the presence of the virtuous wife, who is a crown of glory, sometimes of thorns to her.

WAYWARD HUSBAND.

But, without the restraining influence of the domestic circle, what wicked men those members are! They eat hash through Lent with an indifference that is really shocking. On Sunday they do not attend divine service, but, on the contrary, smoke wicked cigars and write profane letters to their constituents—we say profane because they are full of lies. The member writes to his constituent that he loves when in truth he hates him and wishes he were dead. He is on intimate terms with the smiling sirens of the lobby, and has delicious little suppers with said sirens that cost some ready money and some very

QUESTIONABLE NOTES.

Now we say to all good wives who are so unfortunate as to have husbands returned to Congress, to accompany these husbands if they wish to continue their marital relations in that other and better world to which even Congressmen, under the wide forgiveness of Christian salvation that took even a thief to heaven may aspire. These good women don't know to what temptation their liege lords and our lawmakers are subject. Of these, the most seductive are the sirens above referred to. But designing men having certain jobs, as they are called, to get through Congress, involving millions, fetch to their aid beautiful, accomplished, and we are pained to write,

UNSCRUPULOUS WOMEN.

Think of the unsophisticated Solon, fresh from some primitive, rude town, where a tailor plays the flute after night—where the principle resorts are a hotel with the sign swung out, and water-trough and pump before it, the barber shop and corner grocery, and the only amusement the yearly circus and quarterly revival, coming to such a whirlpool of political wickedness and fashionable folly as this, and then meeting with a beautiful, accomplished, magnificently dressed female, who smiles upon him, and has such soft, confiding ways and fascinating manners. The plain, unfashionable, HOMELY WIFE AT HOME, whom he married in early youth, suffers in comparison. How the cunning leader of the ring brings Congressional simplicity in contact with this fascinating creature! What sumptuous dinners and delicious little suppers; what rare wines and rare dishes tempt the Solon, until, carried away, he falls, like Satan, never to rise again! When the Solon wears of these female fascinations the next step downward comes in the shape of money. Poor fellow! His pay is inadequate, his business at home has all gone to sixes and sevens, his family needs money, and it is so easy to accept a small loan, an than a little stock, and then more loans and more stock, till the virtuous

OLON GOES UNDER.

If the good wife wishes to save her larger self she must not trust him alone in this wicked city. And when with him let her keep a sharp eye on his movements and associates. She must not trust him to an unlimited use of a night key, and if any fashionable females come about let her frown with great severity and hurry her beloved law-maker away as rapidly as legs—we beg pardon, limbs—can carry her. If he expresses a wish to visit Welcker's go with him. It will be a nice, quiet evening instead of a monotonous night. The only place she can fairly trust him—and we write this advice in behalf of virtuous innocence—is the Washington Club.

Relics of a past People.

Excavation in Tennessee—The Hidden Mysteries of "Bone Cave."

Near this city is a cave commonly known as "Bone Cave," from which have been brought, at various times, by boys and other persons who have tried to explore its hidden recesses, human bones of unusual size. The popular legends of the people or race which erected the "Old Stone Fort," which stands a short distance to the west of the town. A few days since some boys discovered an almost entire human skeleton of mammoth size. The bones of the forearm were nearly twenty inches long, while the bone of the lower part of the leg was longer than an ordinary man's limb, foot and all. The jaw bone of this giant would slip over the face of an ordinary man. Stimulated by these discoveries, and a laudable desire to learn the secrets of this mysterious cavern, on last Thursday six gentlemen, including the editors of this paper, made the necessary preparations, and started out to explore the "bone cave."

After an exhilarating walk of two miles through a clear, bracing air, we reached the entrance of the cave, where, divesting ourselves of our overcoats, and lighting our torches, we entered one of the many passages, but after a short scramble we found further advance stopped by large pieces of rock that had fallen and blocked up the passage. Again we started, and this time we were correct. Going back about 250 feet, we found the passage growing narrower until we had to go "snake fashion." At this point we found a sharp descent leading—we know not where, but rocks detached and sent whirling down reverberated and rebounded until the sound was lost in the distance. After some pounding away of rocks, a passage was made large enough for one man to "squirm" through. A tough, long grapevine was then procured, and turned down, and while the upper end was held by two stalwart men, the senior editor grasped it and swung off, determined to find the bottom of that cave, China, or—some other place.

At a distance of about twenty-five feet we struck bottom, but found it was only a shelving platform, that sloped and led—no one knew where. Soon another member of the party came down, and explorations commenced. We found ourselves in a vaulted chamber about twenty-five feet wide by sixty long, with passages leading in every direction. Following one, we rambled on for forty or fifty feet, and then there appeared one of the most beautiful lakes we have ever seen. The water was clear and sweet, and the ceiling over the water studded with stalactites, reflected back the light of our torches like gems, we had no means of ascertaining the size of the lake, for the banks were perpendicular, and it seemed like a pearl set in a bed of rocks. Another passage which was explored by B. F. Fleming was found to extend in a direct line towards the "Old Stone Fort." This passage followed for a distance of nearly two hundred feet, when further progress was stopped by the passage being filled up with debris.

This passage looks as if it had been cut from the solid rock by the hand of man, and gives rise to the hypothesis that at some time far back in the dark ages this cave was used by a race of men—giants, if you like—that built this stone fort and the mounds, and that this underground passage led from the fort to the cave, a mile distant. After a good look at this part of the cave, we returned to daylight, having been underground three hours, and traversing over a mile inside the cave. After partaking of a lunch we had a short search in the tunnel known as the "Dead House." Here we found many bones, but all in a state of decomposition and decay. This tunnel or chamber is coated with a soft, loose soil to the depth of a foot or more, into which one can plunge a stick with perfect ease, while the roof of the cave is solid rock. This soil is supposed to be decayed animal matter—flesh and bones. —Manchester (Tenn.) Democrat.

Budding Authorship.

From Harper's Magazine for April.

Last on our dramatic roll is your humble servant, Lawrence Laureate, Esq., an author by courtesy, who has got some little notoriety by writing for the magazines and newspapers, and at present enjoys the additional dignity of being supposed to be engaged in writing a book.

While I may acknowledge to you in confidence that I haven't an idea of such a thing, not a page on paper, nor the shadow of a plan in my brain, I have permitted the delusion to circulate without contradiction, for I find some advantage in it.

I am a bachelor, shy and secluded in my habits, and quite unskilled in the lighter social accomplishments. In view of my presumed literary engagement, the girls excuse my awkwardness, don't expect me to dance, and treat me as they do all other "engaged gentlemen."

I am thirty-three years of age, with very limited means, and ought to have some regular occupation. The hypothetical book satisfies my friends and the public on that score. It apologizes for late hours and red eyes for mornings, dignifies careless apparel, and excuses a host of other irregularities and shortcomings. It envelops one's commonest doings in the romance of mystery. When I pay my yearly subscription to the village papers, and invite the editor to drink, next week's issue contains a notice of the forthcoming work, which inflames the impatience of the literary world to boiling-point.

Acquaintances introduced me as the celebrated author of the greatest book of the age—not yet out—something ponderous, which crushes people who don't know better with a sense of their own significance. In brief, one enjoys all the deference, distinction, and immunity of successful authorship without exposure to the risk of failure, the envy of critics, or the exhausting weariness of brain-work.

Happy is he who is always going to write a book—and don't. Yet nature has no lights without their corresponding shadows; and the life of a sincere and devoted worshiper of the Muses has its mournful and even tragic aspects.

How many tempting dinners and jolly suppers must one sacrifice at the bidding of an exacting brain!

How many a budding affection is nipped by the deadly jealousy of the Muses! How many a burning dream of ambition is ruthlessly quenched! And this is the poet's life; for his lofty ideal in the clouds must he forsake all earthly pleasures, loves, and glories. Glorious, indeed, is the service; but there are at times doubt and repinings which amount to torture.

A HUGE ENGINE.—The largest stationary engine in the world was put in operation a few days ago at the Lehigh Zinc Works, at Princeville, Lehigh Co., Pa. It is of three thousand horse power, its weight 650 tons, and is capable of pumping, if necessary, from 15,000 to 27,000 gallons of water per minute, and this from a depth of 300 feet. The heaviest pieces are sections of beams weighing 24 tons. The cylinder is 110 1/4 inches in diameter, and the length of stroke is ten feet. Two wrought iron shafts weigh sixteen tons each. The piston rod is fourteen inches in diameter. The cross-head weighs eight tons. The connecting rods weigh eleven tons each, their length is forty-one feet two and a half inches, and their diameter nine inches in the neck and fifteen in the middle.

The State Board of Building Commissioners will not advertise for proposals for building the new State Capitol until about the 1st day of May, owing to the fact that Mr. E. E. Myers, the architect, has not yet completed the specifications, and it is estimated that he will require until that time to do so.

Charles Reade subscribes for six American Journals, which he says far exceed the English papers in point of news. He keeps them on file, and occasionally finds a plot in one of them for a novel.

A Newburgh Boy's Bulging Passion—Joseph Wheeler's Mad Freaks—Hunting the Round-House and Stealing Locomotives.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Sun, Newburgh, March 24.

Joseph Wheeler, who was recently arrested for malicious mischief in cutting some Erie palace car cushions in Jersey City, is a native of this city, and is about twenty-three years of age. His mad exploits would constitute an eventful chapter. Wheeler is one of a large family. His father is a pattern-maker, and through his influence the son was placed in the Washington Iron Works to learn the

SATURDAY, APRIL 27, 1872.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

A Convention to elect four delegates to the Republican State Convention, to be held at Jackson, May 10th, will be held at the Court House, Grand Haven. On the evening of Wednesday, May 8th, 1872, at 7:15. At this Convention a new County Committee may also be elected and such other business as may properly come before the Convention. As this Convention is to have its bearing on the Presidential contest, a full representation of the Cities and Townships of the county is requested. The apportionment of the delegates, based on the last Republican vote for Governor, is as follows:

Allendale, 3; Blenden, 1; Chester 3; Crockery, 4; Grand Haven city 1, 1st Ward 3, 2d Ward 2, 3rd Ward 1, 4th Ward 1; Grand Haven township, 1; Holland City 1, 1st Ward 3, 2d Ward 4; Holland township, 5; Jamestown, 4; Olive 1; Polkton, 7; Robinson, 1; Spring Lake, 5; Talmadge, 6; Wright, 6; Zeeland, 5; Georgetown 4. ### REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

A Republican State Convention, to appoint twenty-two delegates to represent this State in the National Republican Convention, to be held at Philadelphia, June 6th, 1872, to nominate candidates for President and Vice President, and also to elect a Republican State Central Committee, will be held in the city of Jackson, at Union Hall, Thursday, the 16th day of May next, at 11 o'clock A. M.

The several counties will be entitled to two delegates for each Representative in the lower branch of the State Legislature; and every organized county having no representation will be entitled to one delegate.

By the resolution of 1868, no delegate will be entitled to a seat who does not reside in the county he represents. Signed by the Republican State Central Committee. Lansing, March 12, 1872.

THE PLAN.

It has been announced through the press generally, that at the conference at Washington, a few days since, whereat several able-bodied Democrats were present, such as Pendleton, Morgan, Voorhees and Doolittle, that they fixed up a coalition ticket for the Cincinnati Convention; and that the joint high Commission on the part of the Democratic party, plead for just one little Democrat on the tail end of the ticket; but it would seem that the majority of the liberal Republicans insisted that they could not divide the ticket, that it must be composed purely of Republicans, whereupon the Democratic party, being more given with generous desires, signified their willingness to accept a Republican ticket, with this proviso: that it should be Judge David Davis and Ex-Gov. Curtin, of Pennsylvania.

Those able-bodied Democrats would attempt to trade the rank and file of their party to the support of such a ticket. This is very plausible, and moreover it is quite natural, having to consent to a Republican ticket, that they should insist upon Judge Davis, he being a man who represents no particular idea of any party, and who is only known to the people of this country, by his having made some of the worst judicial decisions emanating from the Supreme Court, and his efforts to make that Bench a basis of operations for a presidential nomination; surely he is eligible as a reform candidate. We should have expected more from Democratic managers, but we discover their old light still shining.

We can picture to ourselves a great magnanimous, courageous, liberal Republican reform movement culminating in a ticket with Judge Davis for President; a man who represents nothing, a Judge who represents the debasement of the Supreme Court into a platform for presidential aspirations and the degradation of judicial decision into vehicles for the Stump Speeches of Candidates, a Judge who in a case in our own State, as in the county railroad bond question, carried the power of the national Courts over the State judiciary to a point beyond what was legitimate or equitable, a Judge who united in a decision upon a tax question declaring a principle which will take every corporation which can procure a charter from Congress out of the taxing power of the States; a Judge who holds that Congress has absolute power over the obligations of private Contracts, and is supreme over rights of property; a Judge who subscribed to the atrocious doctrine that the power to tax, which our government possesses, may be used for that purpose at the discretion of the government. We certainly agree with those who are seeking to strengthen the reform movement that they cannot better distinguish their principles or designs than by nominating Judge Davis as their standard bearer.

As an example of the influence the New York Tribune has in politics, Connecticut testifies. It is said that in no State does the Tribune circulate more freely than in Connecticut. And yet there are no "liberals" in that State that count, on election days.

OUR STONE QUARRY.

About one and a half mile south-east from this city on the line of the Grand Rapids & Holland Railroad is a stretch of country hitherto, but partially settled, and until quite recently comparatively unknown in its Geological formation. That a cropping out of that marshel sand stone had been discovered and an effort made some years ago to procure stone for building purposes is admitted, but after a few unsuccessful efforts the project was abandoned as worthless; thus matters remained. Our people importing stone year after year at great expense, until some two or three years since our indefatigable fellow townsman Hon. John Roost, conceived the visionary (as was then thought) scheme of penetrating the earth, removing its surface and ascertaining to a certainty the thickness of the strata and the area of territory covered by this rock formation.

The result of his experiment has demonstrated the fact that a large formation exists sufficient for ages to come, and the more important fact has been established that it can be quarried and brought to market at prices much below what stone can be delivered for from abroad. Mr. Roost has convinced the most skeptical that we have at our command an unlimited supply of sand-stone of superior quality within easy reach of this city; and experience has proven that it is more economical for use in walls and buildings than any other variety. It is found in layers and is easily worked into any desired shape.

The expansive action of heat does not seem to affect it in the least, where ever these stone were used we noticed they remain intact, that the great fire of last November did not displace them, the walls remaining in every instance nearly as good as before the fire. This fact being conceded we can readily see that the day is not distant when Holland may become the great mart for stone for the Lake Shore region. When the stone is first taken from the quarry it is soft and easily wrought into any desired shape, but as it becomes dry by the exposure to atmospheric influences it hardens and becomes more and more valuable. The work should be encouraged and the material become better known.

EX-GOVERNOR BLAIR.

Mr. Blair of Michigan, returned from Detroit last evening, having been absent from Washington about a week. He reports that the Liberal Republican movement in that State has assumed most respectable proportions, and that he was surprised to find how many persons intended to go to Cincinnati, either as delegates or on their own account.—Washington Correspondence N. Y. Tribune.

The above extract does not surprise any one, at all familiar with the politics of this State, and the political aspirations of our ex-Governor. Since his last defeat by the man of whom no fears were apprehended, he has, with his friend, Albert Williams, been seeking a more congenial element. During the great struggle over the Chicago Relief Bill, delegates from this State inform us that the ex-Governor refused to assist in securing to Michigan her rights, by defeating this bill, giving as his reason, that it was one of Ferry's projects, and he must work it out. With such a disposition manifesting itself, the Republican party of Michigan are not surprised at the new departure of our worthy ex-Governor. If the prospect of office is all that attaches a man to his party, the sooner he is out of it the better, there can be no real strength in his professions, the party is stronger without them.

Senator Sumner did not attend the great "Liberal" Republican meeting held a few days since at Cooper Institute, New York, and as appears, gave no heed to the invitations extended to him. The recent elections at the East, have probably made an impression upon his mind, which leaves it in an unsettled condition. He is reported as having said, that if Gen. Grant is nominated at the Philadelphia Convention, he will support him. As little has been heard of Mr. Sumner of late, there is yet a ray of hope that political suicide may be averted, and he be saved to the party for many years to come.

Senator Schurz can not carry the German vote. Several of the German papers are stepping to the front, desiring to be heard. The Indiana Volksblatt a German Republican paper of influence says of him: "Since he turned his back upon the party and stooped so far—willing or not—as to agitate in the interest of the Democracy, he has lost his foothold, and though a few of his personal friends may accompany him to the abyss to which he seems bound to go, his influence upon the German Republicans in general is gone."

RAIL ROAD LANDS.

The House of Representatives has passed by a two thirds vote the bill confirming to the Port Huron and Lake Michigan Railroad Company a grant of land made to Michigan for a railroad from Grand Haven to Flint thence to Port Huron. This is as it should be, the lands in question have been a source of revenue to speculators who with only a shadow of title have perserved in selling to the settlers and reaping large profits from the sweat of the poor. We care not who eventually secures the title only place these lands upon the market with an undoubted title that he who purchases may feel secure in making payment for the same. A large portion of these lands in this county are already settled upon and much has been paid upon them. It will be the source of much suffering to these hard working men if they are forced to pay for these lands the second time. Can not Congress make some provisions whereby so much of the said grant as may be sold and paid for, shall revert to government, from thence to parties already upon the land for a reasonable compensation. At all events let this mooted question be settled. We have large quantities of these lands in our vicinity and the uncertain condition of title has greatly retarded our prosperity. We clip the following from the Detroit Tribune:

The lands involved were granted by the United States in 1856 to the State of Michigan, to aid in the construction of a line of railroad between Grand Haven and Point Huron. The Legislature of this State conferred the grant upon the Detroit and Milwaukee Railroad Company and the Port Huron and Milwaukee Railroad Company. The amount of land is about 35,000 acres. The Detroit and Milwaukee Railroad Company constructed their line between Owosso and Grand Haven within the time limited by act of Congress but finally declined to receive the lands upon the terms imposed by the Legislature, the imposition of a tax of one per cent upon the capital of the company that should take this land. The Port Huron & Milwaukee Railway Company undertook to build a line between Huron and Owosso, but failed and went into liquidation. The citizens along the line purchased all the property of that company, and the franchise of the Port Huron & Lake Michigan Railroad Company, and organized under its charter in 1865. The grant of lands expired by limitation in 1866. The difference in the name of the organization rendered legislation requisite to transfer the grant from the first named companies to the new organization, but the Legislature holding session only biennially, there was no opportunity between the organization of a new company and the lapse of the grant, to apply for that necessary legislation. The new organization, however, has proceeded with the work, built sixty-six miles of the road between Flint and Port Huron, and is at work on the remaining portion between Owosso and Flint, thus completing the link in the line for which the grant was originally intended. The measure strikes us as being of the intrinsic justice.

A great meeting was held in N. Y. City a few days since, to endorse the administration of General Grant. It is said to have been the largest and most unanimously enthusiastic body of men assembled in New York for many years. Cooper Institute was crowded, and thousands could not gain admittance. Hon. Wm. E. Dodge was elected President, with a large number of Vice Presidents. On taking the chair, Mr. Dodge said:

"As I have been able to understand the platform of the new departure, they propose nothing which the President has not again and again, publicly in his messages and by his acts, shown his readiness to carry out. I am confident that he, as well as the mass of the Republican party, is as ready to remove the political disabilities of the people of the South, with a few understood exceptions, as any of the boasted reformers; and while I would not brand those with whom I have heretofore associated as traitors to party, yet it must be apparent to all that their only chance of success is the fact that the Democratic party may unite with them in their opposition; in which case there would be no other virtual result than bringing the Democratic party again into power."

Resolutions were then passed, fully endorsing the administration. Speeches were made by Senator Morton of Indiana, Senator Wilson of Massachusetts and Gen. Sickles. During the meeting congratulatory telegrams were received from Congressional delegations from the following States: Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Maine, Vermont, Georgia, South Carolina, Mississippi, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Wisconsin, Kansas and District of Columbia.

The prevailing opinion at Cincinnati is that the liberal Convention will certainly nominate candidates for President and Vice President, and that the choice lies between Charles Francis Adams, Lyman Trumbull and Judge Davis. The friends of the first and last are actively at work; but the Democratic influence seems to be on the side of Davis and Curtin.

SENATOR TRUMBULL'S $10,000.

The fact that Senator Trumbull secretly received $10,000 for his services in the McArdle "Military Commission" case, has greatly surprised everybody. Of the seven Republican Senators who voted against the impeachment of Johnson, no one was more universally acquitted of any corrupt motive than Mr. Trumbull. But here is the fact of his receiving the enormous fee of $10,000, while daily occupying his seat in the Senate of the United States, and at the very time the impeachment trial was pending. For all that he did before the Supreme Court, in the McArdle case, $1,000 would have been ample compensation for mere professional service. We pass over the question of the propriety—not to say legality—of his receiving fees at all for such service. His arguments before the Court are known to have been unsuccessful. This the subsequent decision in the kindred Mulligan case proves. If he rendered any important service in the McArdle matter at all, it was in procuring the passage of an act denying the Supreme Court jurisdiction. This measure, he engineered to advantage, being chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Was he compensated for this service, so obnoxious to the Democratic mind?

In this connection we only care, at present, to recite the following plain facts: The House voted the impeachment of President Johnson on the 24th of February, 1868. Early in March, the case came to trial in the Senate. It was pending before the body until the decisive vote on the 16th of May. Now note the dates, as shown by the record, at which Mr. Trumbull received the three payments, going to make up the handsome sum of $10,000. They are as follows:

March 7, 1868.....	$1,000
April 6, 1868.....	2,000
April 22, 1868.....	7,000
	$10,000

We do not say that these payments influenced Mr. Trumbull's vote against the impeachment of Johnson, on a case so clear that only one vote was lacking of the requisite two-thirds. We do say, however, that the whole transaction has a very bad look in more ways than one. Evidently Mr. Trumbull has broken down in his role of model reformer.—Exchange.

GENERAL GRANT.

Eleven States have now expressed their preference to Gen. Grant. These include Massachusetts, Ohio, Iowa, Kentucky, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Maine, Oregon, Florida, and Wisconsin. The Connecticut, South Carolina and Missouri delegations are favorable to his nomination, though without instructions. What is the meaning of this unanimity?

It is sure evidence that the people are having something to say relative to our rulers. They are speaking in thunder tones to the Sumner's and Schurz's saying to them that they can not throttle public sentiment and demand their support. They are but servants of the people and as such they will in due time find their places filled by men faithfully representing a free enlightened, independent constituency.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—The only son of Francis Groeters, aged about nine years, while playing near the High School on Wednesday, fell on a stump and was so severely injured internally that he died on Friday. In this afflictive dispensation of Providence, Mr. Groeters and family have the sympathy of the entire community.—Daily Herald.

This is not a good spring for court house propositions in this State. Lena-wee, Calhoun, Isabella and Ionia counties all submitted propositions to the people to raise money to build new court houses which are greatly needed in their respective localities, and the absence of which in the case of the two first named counties is a positive public disgrace. In each instance the proposal has been voted down, in the last two by large majorities. Isabella asked for $12,500, and the other three counties for some $50,000 each.

Hon. W. D. Foster, of the Fourth Congressional District, gives notice that there will be a competitive examination at Grand Rapids, June 4th, for such residents of his district between the ages of 17 and 22 as may seek his nomination to a Cadetship at West Point Military Academy. Dr. Charles Shepard, Hon. John T. Holmes and Prof. Daniels, Superintendent of Schools in Grand Rapids, are appointed to act as an Examining Board.

Local News.

Mr. J. O. Bakker has removed to his new house on 12th street opposite the residence of Jan Trimpe Esq.

If you love your neighbor as yourself, tell him where he can find for rent a dwelling house, in this city; that is the question most often asked now-a-days.

A new Post Office called Bravo has been made, and Mr. R. C. Eaton appointed P. M. It is situated on the Chicago & Michigan Railroad in the township of Clyde.

We learn that the list for the Light Guard Company is nearly full. Those of our young men who desire to join should do so at once; call at Joslin & Breyman's Jewelry store for particulars.

Street Commissioner, A. Woltman is sending out little papers inquiring for one dollar which every man owes to the streets. There can be no dodging this year, the Poll Tax you must pay, or work; good for Arie.

The tug Croton has been laying in our Harbor for repairs. Her machinery has been thoroughly overhauled at the Holland Iron Works. It will be ready for service, with Capt. Upham as master by the first of next week.

Mr. James Van den Berge has rented the store building of C. De Jodge and intends during the coming week to have on sale a full supply of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods etc., as soon as his stock arrives, we shall give notice.

The store of C. P. Storrs, at Grand Haven was entered on Monday night, by some person unknown, who stole three bars of maple sugar, some butter and drank a little cider. Burglars are becoming quite modest in their demands now-a-days.

Fair weather has again put in its appearance and has given us a foretaste of what we may expect in a few days, we are willing to accept terms, and robe ourselves in summer dress as soon as old Sol commands; we are anxiously waiting his orders.

William Van Putten is doing a thriving Drug trade; but not being satisfied has added to his complete stock of Drugs and Medicines a department for Paints, Oils, Putty etc.; of which he has a large stock on hand, and desires to sell at a reasonable profit. William will do as he agrees; try him.

On Monday last a strike for higher wages occurred among the laborers upon the Construction Train of the Chicago & Michigan Lake Shore R. R. Co. The Company had been paying twelve shillings per day. They are now paying fourteen shillings per day, and the men are again at work.

We learn that Messrs. Pauels, Van Putten & Co. are reorganizing their Flour and Saw Mill for the summer campaign. They are putting in a new foundation for their Boiler and raising a new Smoke-stack and making many other repairs, which will enable them to better supply the great demand for flour and lumber at their mill, make it right gentlemen, then go ahead.

On Thursday last, the steamer Lac La Belle landed at Grand Haven with 10,000 bushels of corn on board, which is to be transferred to the D. & M. cars by means of the elevator. The Herald says: "This is the first time the elevator has been put to practical use. It is in prime order and we believe its advantages will prove so great that it will be kept in constant operation."

We learn that Mr. J. O. Doesburg Druggist has given up the idea of again starting in business in this city, and that he intends to pursue his old and honorable calling of printing for the present. Mr. Doesburg has the reputation of a first class printer and we have no doubt he will succeed to his satisfaction by this change of business, success to him.

C. M. Wise Attorney for the case of E. Webster vs. the people of the State of Michigan, informs us that the case was brought to a close on Wednesday last by Mr. Webster pleading guilty to the charges preferred against him; Also that the case of A. Koning was tried before a Jury and convicted. These cases originated by the unlawful taking of goods sent here for the relief of our burned out citizens.

Mr. Jan Albers' Jewelry store was removed yesterday across the street, he is to erect a new building on the ground recently occupied.

Excursion.—As the boats are now running on the river, it will be pleasant to take an excursion to the dedication of the Congregational Church at Eastmanville on Wednesday, May 1st. Grand Haven and Spring Lake friends and the public are cordially invited.—Grand Haven Herald.

EARTHQUAKE.—Antioch, in Syria, was almost totally destroyed, on the 8th, by an earthquake, killing about 15000 inhabitants.—It was once a capitol and contained about 200,000 inhabitants. It has passed through various vicissitudes of pestilence, earthquakes and conquest until now, when it contained about 7,000 inhabitants.—Oceana County Journal.

The Detroit Weekly Union (Democratic) comes to us regularly, and for a new acquaintance we like it well. It is neat in typographic appearance and very ably edited, it is free from the fire in the rear doctrine of the Free Press and must become an honorable acquisition to the Democratic party in this state and well worthy their patronage. Democrats in this part of the state should become more familiar with it, and they will like it.

Superintendent O'Rourke of the Michigan Lake Shore R. R. has been in town this week making preparations for lowering the grade of the track through Fifth Street to Black Lake. The Company are permitted to excavate across River street to a depth not to exceed 12 inches below the present grade. This will give the Company a chance to get to the Lake upon a grade much better than they have had, and will be satisfactory we presume to property owners along the street affected by it.

FIRE AT SPRING LAKE.—About 10 o'clock last Monday evening an alarm of fire was sounded in this village. Almost simultaneous with the cry of fire, the flames were seen bursting from the rear end of Langland's Dry Goods and Grocery store, the fire soon communicated with his dwelling and stables and were entirely consumed. Also the dwelling house of Mr. Savery. Mr. Langland had a stock of goods valued at $5000. But little was saved; we do not learn that there was any insurance.

APPOINTMENT.—Gov. Baldwin has appointed John R. Stewart, Esq., of Grand Rapids, State Prison Inspector, vice V. P. Collyer, resigned. It is a most responsible position, an honorary appointment, and an honor to Mr. Stewart, for it is the first time a citizen of Grand Rapids has received such an appointment. It is just tribute to his integrity, intelligence and good citizenship, and we are pleased to learn that he has accepted the appointment and received his commission. He will do his duty.

"A call for the National Soldiers Convention has been made, it will be held in the city of Washington D. C. May 6th, 1872. The appointment agreed upon is one private soldier or noncommissioned officer from each Congressional District in the United States. The leading design of the convention is to organize in place of the G. A. R." An organization of this exclusive character will meet with a feeble response from the boys in blue. If the charges be true that Shoulder Straps control the G. A. R. then the 1000 men to each General have not done their duty. Shoulder straps can not rule if the rank and file would step to the front join the army, request their rights. We believe they would be cheerfully recognized; the fault is not with Shoulder Straps.

Since the snow has cleared off from the burnt region in northern Wisconsin, and left the ground bare again, more relics of that terrible storm of flame are found in the woods and fields there about, and some such relics are the remains of what were human forms. The body of old Mr. Newbury was found in the woods, on his farm, near Peshigo, on Monday, the 15th inst., burned almost to a skeleton. He was identified by a pair of shoes found near his body, which he was known to be wearing on that fatal night of October 8th. The body of Daniel McGregor, supposed to have been burned in the boarding house, at Peshigo, was also found, floating in the river, on the 16th inst. The face was badly burned. The body was recognized by some keys found in his pocket, belonging to the caboose, which ran to the Harbor, and which was in his charge.

GRAND HAVEN PUBLISHING COMPANY.—On Tuesday last a Company with the above title, with a capital of $30,000 was organized in Grand Haven by the adoption of articles of association under the statutes of Michigan. After the elections of directors the board organized as follows: President—Henry S. Clubb. Vice President—George E. Hubbard, Treasurer—Charles N. Dickinson. Secretary and Attorney—Samuel L. Tate. Capt. Robt. Haire, Spring Lake, Rev. A. D. Stowell and Prof. C. L. Whitney of Muskegon are members of the Board.

Grand Haven News.

From our own Correspondent.

The First Independent Episcopal Church and Society of Grand Haven (colored) was incorporated on Wednesday.—The Society expect to erect a church-building this season.

Senator Hon. Wales F. Storrs has sold his fine residence at Cooperville and has come to this city to live. The Senator has confidence in the rapid growth and future greatness of Grand Haven as is evident from the fact that he is investing his means in our real estate.

Eben Webster and Arie Koning residing at Holland, were on Wednesday last placed upon trial in the Circuit Court of this County, charged with burglariously taking "Relief Goods" from the store-house of Marshal Woltman. After the Jury had been drawn Webster withdrew his plea of not guilty and substituted that of guilty.—Koning however trusting to the blandishments of Counsel and charity of prison considered himself innocent until he was forced to change his mind by the verdict of the jury.

Republican City Convention.

There will be a Mass Convention of the Republican party of this City at E. J. Harrington's office on Monday evening May 6th, 1872 at 7 o'clock to elect delegates to represent this city at the County Republican Convention to be held on the Wednesday following in the Court House in the city of Grand Haven. By order City Committee.

INSURE WITH THE OLD

"North America"

INS. Co. OF PHILADELPHIA, PA.

(ESTABLISHED 1794.)

Why? Because it is the oldest Ins. Co. in the United States.

Because it was the first to pay its Holland losses in Ready Cash.

Because it has paid over $26,000,000 losses.

Because it has a surplus (over and above its debts) of more than any two Ins. Co's. in the United States.

Because it has a surplus of more than five times that of all the other Ins. Co's. in the city combined.

For proof, read the (Jan. 1872) Report of the Superintendent of the Insurance Department of New York.

Policies issued at the Holland agency, as low as by any other responsible Company.

Do not waste your money with worthless insurance but insure with the old

The Peach Crop.

M. B. Batcham, of Painesville, reports that in the immediate Lake Shore region, extending from Elyria eastward along the Lake Shore Railroad to Erie, peach buds are not injured to any great extent. This remark will apply, with some modifications, to the district in Ohio bordering on the Lake and extending back not more than ten or twelve miles. At Fremont, in Sandusky county, the buds are killed. So in all Central Ohio, as a general rule, until we touch the Ohio River counties in the Cincinnati range, or from Portsmouth to Cincinnati, where the buds are in good condition. This state of affairs continues in the same sections bordering on the River southward.

Information from the Lake Michigan peach growing districts reports buds alive. Southern Illinois has escaped with her peach orchard, promising a fair yield. The Delaware and New Jersey peach regions promise not as usual, and some put the estimate at a half a crop. Judging from present reports the peach crop will be a very short one, say one-fifth of that of last year or less.

Apples promise well, the districts with short crops last year taking the least this. The peach trees in Southern Illinois seem subject to these alternating swells, as sections that in 1870 boasted of plentiful crops, had last year a light yield, or no peaches at all, while sections north or south had an abundant yield. So, in calculating the peach crop on the bud indication, we must consider these peculiarities.—American Farm Journal.

LIFE'S BRIGHTEST HOUR.—Not long since I met a gentleman who is assessed for more than a million. Silver was in his hair, care upon his brow, and he stooped beneath his burden of wealth. We were speaking of that period of life when we had realized the most perfect enjoyment, or, rather, when we had found the happiness nearest to be unalloyed. "I'll tell you," said the millionaire, "when was the happiest hour of my life. At the age of one-and-twenty I had saved up $800. I was earning $500 a year, and my father did not take it from me, only requiring that I should pay for my board. At the age of 22 I secured a pretty cottage, just outside of the city. I was able to pay two-thirds of the value down, and also to furnish it respectably. I was married on Sunday—a Sunday in June—at my father's house. My wife had come to me poor in purse, but rich in the wealth of her womanhood. The Sabbath and the Sabbath night was passed beneath my father's roof, and on Monday morning I went to my work, leaving my mother and sister to help in preparing my home. On Monday evening, when the labors of the day were done, I went not to the paternal shelter, as in the past, but to my own house, my own home. The holy atmosphere of that hour seems to surround me even now in the memory. I opened the door of my cottage and entered. I laid my hat upon the little stand in the hall, and passed on to the kitchen—our kitchen and dining-room were all one then I pushed open the kitchen door and was—in heaven! The table was set against the wall—the evening meal was ready—prepared by the hands of her who had come to be my help-meet in deed as well as in name—and by the table, with a throbbing, expectant look upon her lovely and loving face, stood my wife. I tried to speak, and could not. I could only clasp the waiting angel to my bosom, thus showing to her the ecstatic burden of my heart. The years have passed—long, long years—and worldly wealth has flowed in upon me, and I am honored and envied; but—as true as heaven—I would give it all—every dollar—for the joy of the hour of that June evening in the long, long ago!"—New York Ledger.

A MAN BURIED ALIVE.—An Irishman took the contract to dig a public well. When he had dug about 25 feet down, he came one morning and found it caved in, filled nearly to the top. Pat looked cautiously around and saw that no person was near, then took off his hat and coat, hung them on the windlass, crawled into some bushes, and waited events.

In a short time the citizens discovered that the well had caved in; and, seeing Pat's hat and coat on the windlass, they supposed that he was at the bottom of the excavation. Only a few hours of brisk digging cleared the loose earth from the well.

Just as the citizens had reached the bottom and were wondering where the body was, Pat came walking out of bushes and good-naturedly thanked them for relieving him of a sorry job.

Michigan against the World.

In the New York Tribune of Monday we find the following in regard to a Michigan man:

"One marvel duly promulgated produces another. Last week we chronicled an extraordinary old gentleman in Georgia, upon which a still more extraordinary old gentleman writes to us from Coldwater, (happy name!) in the State of Michigan, that he is sixty-eight years of age, that he never uttered an oath, never used a dime's worth of tobacco, never bought or sold a drop of whiskey for himself, though for fifteen years he kept a hotel in one of the Southern States. Moreover, our old friend never played a game of marbles, or checkers, or billiards, and only twice in his life has he had a pack of cards in his hands. He has traveled, he says, over 100,000 miles and never met with an accident, nor (hear this ye women!) has never been a moment late. Among other accomplishments, our friend, whose name is Alfred Tibbits, declares that he can repeat more of the Bible than any man living of whom he has any knowledge; and he further deposes that he has given instruction to more than 200,000 pupils; that he has preached for 15 years; that he has traveled over 500 miles to attend 50 funerals, and 'all the salary he ever received,' he says somewhat lugubriously, 'was a pound of tea worth 75 cts.' For 57 years he has not been confined to the house by reason of bodily indisposition for 48 hours at a time. Often he has walked 24 miles to attend divine service.—Old as he is he can read the Tribune without glasses, and a fortunate old man we consider him to be. To crown all, he has three living children, five grand-children, and three great-grand-children; and he is possessed of a competency of this world's goods, 'gained,' he proudly says, 'by my own industry.' We congratulate Mr. Tibbits upon his business, happy and successful life, and confidently offer him as an example to the rising generation."

THE PIN MACHINE.—The machine is one of the closest approaches that the mechanics have made to the dexterity of the human hand. It is about the height and size of a ladies' sewing machine, only much stronger. On the side at the back a light belt descends from a long shaft in the ceiling that drives all the machinery, ranged in rows on the floor. On the left side of the machine hangs, on a peg, a small reel of wire, that has been straightened by running through a compound system of small rollers. The wire descends, and the end of it enters the machine. This is the food consumed by this voracious little dwarf. He pulls it in and bites it off, by inches, incessantly—240 bites to the minute. Just as he seizes each bite, a little hammer, with a concave face, hites the end of wire three times, 'upsets' it to a head, while he grips it to a countersunk hole between his teeth. With an outward thrust of his tongue he then lays the pin sideways in a little groove across the rim of a small wheel that slowly revolves. By the external pressure of a stationary hoop, these pins roll in their place as they are carried under two series of small files, three in each. These files grow finer toward the end of the series. They lie at a slight inclination on the pins, and a series of cams, levers, and springs are made to play lightning. Thus the pins are dropped in a little shower in a box. Twenty-eight pounds are a day's work for one of these jerking little automatons. Two machines reject every crooked pin, even the slightest irregularity of form being detected.

Money Thrown Away. Working-men, read this, and then reflect, if you will, upon the enormity of the taxation you are continually imposing on yourselves: for at a fair estimate two-thirds of the amount stated below comes from the pockets of the working-men. The figures are taken from the last Internal Revenue Report for 1871:

Returns of distilled liquors in the United States, 72,425,000 gallons. Government duties paid on all this $52,581,559. Retail cost of this liquor, at $4 per gallon, $289,700,000. The amount of beer reported was 5,500,000 barrels. Government tax on this beer, $6,319,126. Estimating retail charges for the liquor at $20 per barrel—cost to the people, $110,000,000. Retail cost of chewing and smoking tobacco, to say nothing of snuff, $150,000,000. Think of these immense amounts! To this is to be added the imported liquors, which is equal to the domestic liquors exported and used in medicine and arts, and we have: National tax for distilled liquors, $399,700,000; for fermented liquors, $110,000,000; for tobacco and cigars, $150,000,000; or a total annual tax for stimulants and narcotic poison, of $549,700,000.

A New Idea in Railroad. A Pennsylvania engineer has invented a plan of laying rails, which, he claims will increase the efficiency and economy of railroads. It provides for the laying of two narrow gauge tracks side by side with a space between the inner rails equal to the present ordinary gauge of four feet eight inches. This furnishes two gauges, all of which it is proposed to use. The narrow gauge will be used for freight at a slow rate of speed, while for passenger traffic the wide gauge will be employed, which will admit of a rate of speed being attained as high as one-hundred miles an hour. The cars of the passenger trains will be mounted on four lines of wheels, which the inventor claims will prevent oscillation, and thereby increase safety.

A Southern savings bank, established by negroes, recently collapsed because the depositors withdrew all the funds to attend a circus.

A Car Adventure.

There were five of us, yes, and five as happy fellows as were ever let loose from college. It was vacation and we concluded to take a trip to the Falls. We got on the cars at N—, and were soon traveling very rapidly toward our destination.

We had just seated ourselves, and prepared for a comfortable smoke, when in came the conductor, and who should it be but our old friend, Fred B. After the common salutations, "How are you, old fellows," etc., had passed, Fred said he had some business for us to attend to.

"Out with it, old chum," said we, "anything at all will be acceptable, so let us have it."

"Well, boys," said Fred, in a very confidential tone, "in the next car there is as loving a couple as it was ever my lot to see. They are going down to H—, to get married, and now if you can have any fun out of it, just pitch in. They must be cared for and I don't know who can do it any better than you."

In a moment Fred was gone, and we set our heads together to form a plan for "taking care of the lovers."

"I have it boys," said Bill Steivers. "We must make the girl think that her lover is married—"

"That's it Bill, that's it," said we, not giving him time to finish his sentence.

"That he is a married man, the father of children," said Bill.

"That's the game, boys, now let's play it."

It fell upon me to commence operations. Accordingly I entered the car in which we were informed the lovers were. Sure enough, they were there. The girl thinking, I suppose, that she must give her lover all the seat, had taken a seat on his knee, and he for the purpose of protecting her, had thrown his arm around her waist; and so they sat, in real soft lovers' style.

All this was gathered at a glance. Stepping up to him, I said: "Why, Jones, what are you doing with that girl?"

The girl rose hastily and seated herself on the seat.

"See here, stranger," said the fellow, "you are a mite mistaken; my name ain't Jones."

"Why, Jones," I said, "you certainly have not left your wife and children and tried to palm yourself off for a sin man, have you?"

"I tell you my name ain't Jones; aint got to be, nuther."

I merely shook my head and passed on to another seat to enjoy the fun.

The girl looked wild after I sat down, but Jones alias Harper soon convinced her that I was mistaken.

About the time they got to feeling all right, in came Elliott Gregg. Walking up to Harper, he accosted him with:

"Why, Jones, you here?"

"How did you leave your wife and babies?"

"Now see here, stranger, you aint the first man that's called me Jones to-day, an' I reckon I must look awfully like him, but I aint Jones, an' more than that, you mustn't call me Jones, I haint got a wife, nor babies either, but this 'ere gal an' me is going to splice, and then you may talk about my wife, and I-I wouldn't wonder but what in the course of time, you might talk about babies, too, but you mustn't call me Jones."

This retort brought forth vociferous laughter from the spectators, and it also brought blushes to the face of the gal that was going to be "spliced."

"Ah, Jones," said Gregg, "you'll regret this in the future. I pity your wife and this poor girl."

"So, Mr. Harper, your real name is Jones, is it, and you have been foolin' me, have you? Well, we aint spliced yet and I don't think we shall be, soon, said the girl, and the girl's eyes flashed fire."

"Jane, Jane," said Harper, "don't you know I'm Bill Harper? There aint a drop of Jones blood in me, an' I'll prove it."

At this moment Jeff Jackson, Bill Steivers and Jim Ryers entered, and of course their attention was called to Harper by his loud talking. They stepped up to him and said—

"Why, Jones, what's all this fuss about?"

This was more than he could stand. He jumped upon his seat.

"Now," said he, "my name aint Jones, and I'll kick the first fellow who will say it is."

By this time we had got to H—, and our friend came into the car and made Harper keep quiet. The girl that wouldn't be "spliced," requested Fred to help her on the train that was going back to S—, which he did, and the notorious Jones alias Harper, followed her. We learned after, that he proved himself to be Bill Harper, instead of Bill Jones, and he and his gal have "got spliced."
